

Walking and Cycling Groups

Explore new areas in Scotland using our 3 outdoor centres as your base.

Dounans Centre, Aberfoyle, is well placed for mountain bike adventures, located next to National Cycle route 7 linking Sunderland to Inverness. Explore the area using the extensive forest tracks or hone your skills on the newly built Bike Park (biketrossachs.org.uk). For walkers there is direct access to the Rob Roy Way, the Queen Elizabeth Forest and the rest of the National Park. There are also several Munros and other hill ranges within 40 mins drive.

Belmont Centre, Meigle, is only half an hour from the Angus Glens and close to the high walks from Glenshee. For walkers, the CATERAN Trail can be joined in the nearby town of Alyth. For cyclists, the Alyth Bike Park offers short mountain bike training loops, whereas areas such as Dunkeld and Angus Bike Trails offer tracks from beginner to expert. Also close by are Glamis Castle and Kirriemuir, birthplace of James Barrie, author of Peter Pan.

Broomlee Centre, West Linton, is a start point for walks in the Pentland Hills and some splendid walks in the Scottish Borders such as the fabulous John Buchan way. The centre is just 18 miles from the capital but a leisurely 30 minutes stroll from the pub, shops and restaurant in West Linton. Also just 15 miles away is Glentress, where there are multiple mountain biking trails for all abilities. Bike washing and storage facilities are available onsite.
